A DISCONSOLATE HUSBAND. How a Case of Domestic Irregularity i

I think it may amuse you if I give you some extracts from The North China Herald, which are very curious specimens of a class of advertisement quite common in Chinese newspapers. Advertising must be a very economical matter in China, if one shudges from the length of the advertisement from which I quote. A husband, whose wife has run away, inserts a long account of the circumstances under which he married the lady, and the story of her clopement, and goes on with his piteous tale thus: "I married my wife in 1878, with much feasting, and respectful obedience to parents. She is 27 years old this year. I followed, in July, 1883, the Ko ching (courteous and tranquil) battalion under the ever valorous ciceroy, Tso tsung tsang. As my son was also on his duty, my wife and I removed our residence to Shanghai. In the fifth moon of the present year again we removed to the Hui fang Lou, where my wife, Km ai ch'ing (the affectionste cabbage), want frequently to drink tea at the Til Ion, of which I knew not.

"Later on, on the fifteenth day of the eighth moon, a Huehow man, whose name and surname, and whose grandfather's name and surname, I know not, went with my wife to burn prayers and inceuse to the temple. He had the sacrilegious effrontery to wear the little blue button and the medallion and beads of a great official. This went on until 8 o'clock on the seventeenth day of the ninth moon, when my wife indiscreetly and secretly vanished from my house, carrying a bundle, but leaving a 1-year-old little daughter who, without ceasing, weeps and wails from sunrise to sunrise. How, I wonder, could this ever to be execrated tailor's block without a name beguile Ku ai ch' ing from her husband, who mixes this ink with salt tears? Surely he has not law nor justice before his eyes or on his forchead.

"Should any kind hearted one give me information by letter I will reward him law nor justice before his eyes or on his forchead.

"Should any kind hearted one give me information by letter I will reward him with $20; should he bring her back I will gratefully give him $40, and for a myriad generations, to all eternity, the eldest son of my successors shall burn incense for him. Should this rascal without a name obstinately retain my wife, not only to all eternity shall he be infarnous, not only shall he cut off the line of his ancestors, and be discarded by his grandparents, but we three, father, son and little daughter, will at all times risk our lives to punish him. I hope he will think three times and so svoid an after repentance. Letters shall be received for me at No. 4 Hui fang Lou, or at the house of my wife's niece's husband, Hsia Lao sau, at the Yung Lou," As the exhausted reporter sometimes puts it, "Comment is needless."

Master and Slave,

Capt. Booker, of Post R. E. Lee, played a prominent part in a little incident at Boston lately. He was dining with his old comrades at Faneuil hall. Jollity reigned. There was a telling of stories and clinking of glasses. The deft waiters ran to and fro, supplying the guests, and Capt. Booker was in a gay group. Another toast had just been proposed and a fresh round of thampagne was in order. Capt. Booker raised his class in the ai air a signal to a waiter for more wine. A man came toward him. Capt. Booker was paying attention to to the table talk. He felt a touch on his shoulder and half turned to raise his glass for wine.

He looked at the waiter and the waiter at him. The glass dropped and the bottle too. The surprise overcame both. Comrade Booker saw in the waiter a former slave of his, one he had not seen since the war. The colored man had found his old master, unseen for over twenty years. It was a pleasant recognition, and the waiter found it a profitable one.

Heroic Treatment for Hydrophobia

This was the heroic treatment prescribed for the bite of a mad dog in 1709, as given in Boerhaave's "Aphorisms." "The Method to preserve one from further Harm, requires: (1) That immediately after the Poison is communicated, the whole affected Place, together with the surrounding, be immediately scarified very deep, and Blood be drawn to a great Quantity, by means of large Glasses laid over the scarified Parts; or the same be burned deep with a red hot iron; then the Part be made to suppurate for a long while by means of such things as ulcerate by their constant Corrosiveness; in the meantine, from the Beginning of the Cure to the End, fament the Parts with Pickle made of Bay salt and Vinegar: and these things ought to be continued until the sixth month from the first Accident. (2) The Clothes and other things which may have been touched with the Poison, or that the mad Animal had breathed upon, ought to be laid aside and carefully avoided."

Unappreciated Talent.

Young Mr. Softy Badboy, home on short vacation, entertsining lady friend—"And this is our class yell, Miss Weaknerves, Hoo, pah, hoo pah; hoo pah! yah-hoo, vah-hoo! oom pah! wah-hee! wah-hee? ki-hi! ki-hi! ki-hi! ya ya ya ya, waugh!"

Old Weak-nerves explains next morning, white paying a fine of $50 for assault with a deadly weapon with intent to commit bodily injury and murder, that he had had 'em himself only about ten days ago, and when the attack came on the young man he lost all control of himself and grabbed up an adze and a buggy wrench and went for him.—Burdette.

Tramp: "Please, mum, I've had nothing to eat for three weeks."

Housekeeper: "Don't tell me that. I saw you go lato Mrs. Stuckup's kitchen half an hour ago and you've been there ever aince."

Tramp: "I was waiting for her to warm some things up for me, mum; but when I noticed what a dirty kitchen she had and saw her wipe her hands on her soiled apron and rub some powder over her smutty lace instead of washing it, I felt so disgusted I could not eat a mouthful, and I ain't got my appetite back yet. If it's all the same to you I would rather have some money. After half an hour spent in that woman's house I feel as if I needed a stimulant."

Housekeeper: "Poor man. Here's a dollar."

Ir is difficult to see how the British Government, having put An Outrage on an American its hand to the Egyptian plough, can now turn back, and yet there is little glory or profit to be gotten in fighting a lot of half-naked, illarmed Arabs, and there is certainly no fun in it either; but if the English wish to retain control of the Suez Canal and the road to India, they must remain masters of Suakim, and, indirectly, of Egypt. Lord Salisbury put himself in a sorry plight by his impulsive declaration last March at a banquet to the effect that he did not think the retention of Suskim would be an advantage to Egypt and that it might well oned, and it bodes poor success for the Marquis' foreign policy in general to be compelled so soon to eat his own words and to act in direct opposition to his declared opinions of nine months ago. But such is the penalty of being a Jingo

THE San Francisco Examiner publishes the fact that Frank G. Newlands has taken up his residence in Carson, and strongly intimates that it is to gain a residence for the purpose of entering the Senatorial contest two years hence. If Senator Stewart should be called to the Cabinet, the question arises as to who Mr. Newlands would give his influence It is barely possible that State Senator Sharon of Storey would shy his castor, and, as it would be all in the family anyway, Mr. Newlands might help his kin to get in. So far as the story goes about Mr. Newlands having any intention of entering it. He may be the power behind the throne, but he won't go to the front.

African; Slave Dealers ZANZIBAR, Dec. 27. - It has been discovered that an agreement in relation to slave dealing exists between the English East Africa Company and the Sultan of Zanzibar and the Arab slave dealers of Manboze. The Arabs are authorized to carry on the trade in slaves and flog or otherwise punish slaves and flog or otherwise punish them. The English mission stations are obliged to return runaway slaves to the owners. After the agreement had been signed, the agents of the company, Mackenzie and General Matthews, accompanied by a number of Mobaza Arabs, went to the Rabai Church Mission station and demanded the supercoder of contain removements.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 27 .- The brigantine Josefa, from Montego Bay, Jamaica, brings the news of an outrage suffered at the hands of the Spanish Government. While discharging the cargo on the outward trip from New York to Arroyo Portorico, the Spanish Custom officials discovered that twenty packages of corn starch marked on the vessel's manifest were missing. The vessel was seized by the Spanish authorities and held until a fine of $4,000 thority. The authorities offered to settle the matter if the Captain of the vessel could satisfactorily explain the whereabouts of the missing packages. After the fine had been paid, it was ascertained that the missing goods had been delivered by mistake on board the ship Josephus, which lay next to the Josefa in New York harbor, but were placed on the Josefa's manifest. The explanation was made to the Spanish authorities, and the return of the fine requested, but it was refused. The owners filed a complaint against the Spanish Government with Secretary Eayard. It will be urged that the dives in the Vermillion Iron Range closed. During the excitement of the holiday festivities you don't want to forget that C. J. Brookins continues to carry a full assortment of school books and school supplies.

A San Francisco dispatch of the 24th inst. says: General Superintendent Fillmore of the Southern Pacific Company, when asked to day about the dismissal of employes from the the dismissal of employes from the company's service during the past few weeks, said that the number of men dropped from the payroll was about 800, and that this action was necessary because of the slackness of business at this season, but the company hopes to re-employ the men in the Spring. The dismissals include trackmen, brakemen, switchmen and others. Orders, it is understood, have been sent to all parts of the company's system to reduce the force, and some assistant agents at stations in Nevada and Arizona will also suffer.

Success. At the soda works at Keeler 2,000 tons of crude soda are now ready for purifying. Of this, says the Inyo Independent, 20 per cent., or 400 for fat steers. tens, will be bi-carbonate of soda, worth $70 per ton. The other constituents are worth $30 per ton. The whole will therefore be worth $76,000. The purifying is done by a process discovered and patented by B. F. Gray Superintendent of the works. This process is much more effective and cheaper than the old way of working. The force of men employed has recently been reduced, only twenty-one men now being at work, but many more will be employed next Spring. A great deal of work had to be done making tanks for purifying the soda.
This is now nearly finished, and purifying will begin in a few days. Thirty tons a day will be purified. The source of supply is Owens Lake, and is inexhaustible.

Lydia Thompson.

Lydia Thompson and her own now grand English Burlesque Company, numbering sixty people, will appear at McKissick's Opera House Thursday, January 3d, in Stevens and Solomon's new satirical burlesque, entitled "Penelope." The action of the piece takes place in Greece during the Spartan Era, and gives a scope of costuming era, and gives a scope of costuming never before seen on any stage.

The New York Daily Times says:
Lydia Thompson and her troupe of British Burlesquers have made a great hit at the Star, where the new burlesque of "Penelope" is crowding the house at every performance. Yesterday's matinee was the best attended that has been given in the thester that has been given in the theater since the beginning of the season. Master Fritz James, the sixteen-yearold boy of the company, has deservedly become very popular with the audiences, and is worthy of all the applause which is bestowed on him. Nevada Indian School Site.

The land purchased for the Nevad Indian School is located two and a half miles from Carson City, and comprises 223 acres, 200 of which are under cultreaches, 200 of which are under cultivation. The water right is, by a decree of Court, fixed at the nineteen-hundredths of Clear Creek, or 57 inches. The price paid by the Federal Government for the land was $8,000—about $36 per acre.

Death From Blood Poisoning. On the 20th inst., G. FROM THE NORTH.

NORTH BLOOMFIELD, Dec. 23.

EDITOR GAZETTE: Rain, rain, rain more than eight inches this month and still it comes! In the old days, when every gulch and ravine held a row of sluices and toiling miners, this abundant outpour would rejoice the hearts of thousands; but the small niner has departed, the ground has been absorbed by great corporations and year by year the population has grown less and less. Then came a few years of prosperity after the hy-draulic mining works were fully devel-oped, but this came to an end by the opinion of Judge Sawver and the watchfulness of the anti-mining spies. What the end will be no man knows. We now have the Mining Commission appointed by the President from the Engineer Corps of the army to investigate and report. There are some things about the way this business is being managed that looks a little fishy, but we are all going to hope for the besthope that the business may be so managed that the men with a few sluice boxes set in some obscure ravine may not be driven out, and so managed that no great "job" will be evolved out of what was intended for a beneficent measure. The development of quartz mining goes steadily on in this county. Old claims that have lain idle so long as to become moss-grown are being opened and found to be good proper-ties. There is one curious thing that I don't understand, and a thing that some day San Francisco will wake up to when it is too late. I speak of the There is one New York company operating in this part of the quartz belt of the high Sierras, and the rest of the the high Sierras, and the rest of the developments are being made by poor men, who have little besides their muscles and faith. The work goes on day by day, and already some are reaping an abundant reward. No good opinion of the city by the Bay is entertained by the miners. The Chicago and New York drummer circulates pretty freely in the land, and goes pretty freely in the land, and goes away with well-filled order books. A miner said to me not long ago, "I am going to build a mill in the Spring, and I am going to have it built somewhere East. We can get along first-rate without San Francisco, so let us see how they can get along without ma." Two things have led to this. For the past three years the mining men of that town have adopted a rule that they would pay no more for a mine than what the ore, actually developed, would yield. The miners won't sell at any such rates, saying that no man expects to buy land for the value of the crops growing upon it. It used to be a common thing for miners to give a little over half of a mine to have it developed and have a mill built, but somehow the mine never paid until the original owners had been "froze out." A little of this goes a long

How smart most of us do get in our several professions! This is a peculiar weakness of all miners—they get so they know it all. Here is a curious thing that has been going on for nearly a year about half-way between here and Nevada City, right on the stage road. Last Spring two men located on the road about half a mile from Edwards' bridge, and said they had found a mine They were from San Fran-cisco, strangers in these parts, and said they had never mined in their lives. Well, they stuck up a notice, and near it a board cabin, and pretty soon a tunnel was seen to creep into the soft, yellow rock. Some said that they were mining after quicksilver; some that spirits were guiding them to a big thing in the mountain. Passersby guyed them, and even the Nevada City newspapers poked all manner of the cet the passers. by guyed them, and even the Nevada City newspapers poked all manner of fun at them. I passed the place several times, and saw a cheerful-faced man, with long white beard, minding his own business. Mining experts looked the thing over, and couldn't see for their lives what those lunatics were doing there. The "Old Miner" looked at the ground, too, and, with his feet elevated on some bar-room stove, swore the men were a pair of blamed fools. Still that hole went ahead, and crosscuts were run out from it, and now it Still that hole went ahead, and crosscuts were run out from it, and now it is discovered there is a vein of ore in that mountain about two hundred feet wide that is worth $4 or $5 a ton. The experts are ident, and the "Old Miner" take another drink and says he is "dead beat." A lot of Huntington mills will be put on in the Spring, and this old yellow hill made to give its gold. There are lots of just such places in this section waiting for somebody with a little sand and money to make profitable mines of now idle ground.

Wish you all a happy New Year.

CURE BILIOUSNESS.

HEADQUARTERS ESTABLISHED BY THE THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY.

NEW TEMPLE TO BUDDIIA.

A Toy Temple on Nassau Street-Mystesions Rites and Strange Superstitions The Presiding Priest.

(Copyright 1883.)

From time to time, since the founders of the Theosophisal Society sailed to India to hasthenize the natives there, news of their doings have interested (more or less) the curious in such matters, and has been published widely in the newspapers of Europe and America.

It is not so well known, however, that there is an active band of their followers in New York, who continue to hold meetings and issue different papers and tracts designed to convince the skeptical of the great truths of theosophy. They are not rich, and the notorious project of building a Buddhist temple in the city has never gone further than to form a dream in the minds of the promoters. They have, however, obtained means enough to fit up a place which serves for a temple, and the place, singularly enough is in an office building in one of the very busiest streets in New York. They have hired a hall for their regular meetings, Mott Memorial Hall, it is, and there, on certain specified Tuesday nights, strange people, such as wandering Hindoos, Oriental Hebrews, and unreconstructed Greeks hold forth on the manners and queer religions of their races and birth places. They (the Theosphists of New York) also publish a monthly magazine called The Path. Nobody understands it excepting themselves, but enough of them have subscribed, I am told, to pay the printer, and the editors and contributors work for the good of the cause.

The most remarkable development, and contributors work for the good of the cause.

The most remarkable development, however, is unquestionably the little try temple at 117 Nassau street. Here, if the stories of the initiates are to be believed, certain marvels are to be witnessed. Unhapply for the interests of the newspaper readers these marvels are not performed to order, and I was unable to persuade the mild eyed heathen priest who was in charge, to do any miracles for me, though he was willing enough to let me inspect the was willing enough to let me inspect the place and its fittings.

It is a little room. Fortunately, the Theosophists, like Mr. Dick, care nothing for the swinging of cats, and are not obliged to rent superfluous space. You get into the rooms by the prosaic means of going up the slowest elevator in town, entering a business office, and getting permission there (if you can), to go through a side door into the sanctuary. It is tergiverestions but it ways side door into the sanctuary. It is tergiversations, but it pays.

After opening the door, the priest pulls a curtain aside, and if you look closely you will find the curtain is a Persian fabric of great beauty. Being lifted, it discloses a curfour scene. Opposite the doorway sits Buddha. The god is small, and as ugly as conventionality demands, and he ugly as conventionality demands, and he sits cross-legged in a little niche, pondering the inexplicable secrets of nature, as imperturbabl, as he would if stationed in a Mahatma's cave. In front of him a pot of incense is kept continually burning, and the smoke arises in wavy wreaths that load the air with a stifling perfums. On the floor in front of the image lies a Ceylonese grass mat, brought to New York by Mr. William Q. Judge.

Buddua, aithough apparently the presiding deity of the place, does not seem to have full sway, for on the wall at one end of the room, the blazing seal of the society have full sway, for on the wall at one end of the room, the blazing seal of the society occupies the place of honor. Over it is pletured in illuminated letters, the motto: "No religion higher than truth." Around theother walls are displayed some twenty-five shields, one for each of the branches of the society that have been established all over the United States. "All over." is not unlike accurate, but there are over "is not quite accurate, but there are branch societies in New York, Pennsyl-vania, Ohio, Iowa, Missouri and Califor-nia. These branches have each a distinctive name borrowed from the Eastern re-ite name borrowed from the Eastern re-ligious among them, Ishwara, Vedanta, Isis, Dharma and Nirwana. This last is located is Nebraska, and may be suppos-ed by the irreverent, to stand for the principal desire or longing of the citizens of

A heavy Turkish rug covers the floor, and plais, ordinary, everyday furniture store chairs and a table stand around for furniture, but on the table as well as on the walls are various objects of interest. the walls are various objects of interest. Among them are representations of the Theosophical convention in India, and of the society buildings in Bombay. Another scene is the picture of an Egyptian initiation painted in magic colors, thepigments for which were dug by Madame Blavatsky's fair fingers out of an ancient stone wall in Teheran. Those who doubt this statement are at liberty to go to Terehan and see the wall, which is still there. Mr. Judge has carried this picture nearly all over the world, and it is accordingly prized highly by the faithful. Underneath the picture is a bracket on nearly all over the world, and it is accordingly prized highly by the faithful. Underneath the picture is a bracket on which are certain occult things whose use the priest would not explain. They are a square and a pyramid of crystal, and a sphere of polished steel. If they are of any service beyond being ornamental, the initiates only are allowed to know it.

Half a dozen emblems of religious other than Buddhalsm are displayed on the walls. Among them is a drawing said to be a representation of an ancient Indian statue of a virgin and child guarded by Celestial shadowy beings. The priestal o described a bronze, which is shortly to be added to the queer collection, and which is a copy of an obelisk standing in the rock-cut cities of India, deserted some three or four thousand years ago. This obelisk, he says, also bears the sculptured images of a virgin and child. How the virginal character of these undoubtedly ancient representations is established, I could not learn. The priest said it would be necessary for me to study many volumes of unimpeachable history before being convinced. Area usually induced by costiveness, indigestion, foul stomach, or other derangements of the digestive system, and may be easily cured by the use of Ayer's Pills. May A. Scott, Portland, Me., writes: "I had suffered dreadfully from Sick Headache, and thought myself incurable. Disorder of the stomach caused it. Ayer's Pills cured as entirely."

CURE SILIOUSNESS.

On the table lies a huge album containing photographs of famous theosophists, and some not famous, from all over the world. It also contains a picture of some Mahatma, which (the picture) is said to wink its eyes at long intervals. It did not wink while I was looking, but I saw the nicture.

The most remarkable thing in the room is a huge misshapen mass of rock, crystal with what looks like a large natural faucet. This side is blazingly bril ural faucet. This side is blazingly bril liant, or was when I saw it. It is said to vary in brilliancy at times, and to be a veritable magic crystal in which the spir itual sighted can see visions, mostly relating to Theosophical matters. The officer consult it at certain times of the month to learn the condition of the branches che society, and they claim that when the members of the "more circle only are present, queer sights are seen, and invisible bells tre heard to ring.

Please Faces.

The Whole Family Came from Asia. But Only the Gray Ones Survive.

The black and brown rats are particularly describing of notice, and are the most widely distributed ever the world, according to a writer in the San Francisco Chronete. It is not known where or how they were introduced into Europe first, but it must have been in recent times, as the ancients did not know them. They both appear to be natives of the central part of Asia. The brown rat found its way to Europe in the beginning of the eighteenth century, and reached Britain and the western countries of Europe about the middle of that epoch. The Jacobites of Britain had the notion that they came with the house of Hanover, as they appeared about that time, and therefore chose to call them the Hanoverian rat. They are sometimes erroneously called the Norway rat.

The brown rat is larger and more powerful that the black rat, and they are deadly foes. The brown rat has succeeded in causing an almost total disappearance of the black rat in places where it was very numerous. According to Mr. Rodewell's theory, the manner in which the brown rat has supplanted its black foe is by love instead of war. The browns being the stronger, earry off the females of the blacks by force, and thus he accounts for the curious kind of particolored offspring which may be found in France. These rats infest ships, and so are carried to the most distant parts of the world, some of them getting ashore at every port and establishing new colonies. The black rat is nearly seven inches long, and the brown grows to be ten inches, with a tall eight inches long. Both species are extremely prolific, producing from ten to fourteen at a birth. When they are pressed by hunger they do not hesitate to devour the weaker of their kind.

The rat's never-failing appetite is especially useful in devouring animal and vegetable substances, the putrefaction of which would otherwise be productive of pestilence. It is said that the visits of the plague to Western Europe and Britain have ceased from the

Their sense of smell is very acute, so much so that rat-catchers are careful to glove their hands when setting their traps. The professional rat-catcher in England wears a brass image of a rat as a sign of his business. The ways and means of catching them are a professional secret. They procure them alive and sell them to ratpit keepers. These pit-keepers have a sort of hole where they let the rats loose and dogs are set on them. Crowds of boys and men pay to see this cruel sport. The skin of rats is made into gloves in Paris, and in Riberia there is a field mouse that stores up such quantities of dried roots and other food to last through the long winter of that country that half-starved people, there hunt their nests and carry off most of the food for their own use.

UNSKILLED LABOR. What Men Without a Trade Earn in the City of Chicago.

"There is hardly such a thing imaginable as unskilled labor among men," said an intelligent mechanic to a Chicago News reporter. "We hear the term used very often," he continued, "because it distinguishes the common laborer from the skilled workman. It is a fact, however, that no matter how humble a man's occupation may be he still must have some skill. tion may be he still must have some skill. The one who shovels on the street must know how to use his shovel or he can not perform the work to his own advantage or perform the work to his own advantage or that of his employer. A man can not chop wood with any profit unless he can swing the axe skillfully neither can he carry the hod unless he knows how to load the brick in it and how to climb the ladder. There seems to be no such thing among civilized men as unskilled labor, but there is such a thing as a trade. It is not the independent mechanic who needs the protection that is afforded by a union half so much as the helpless laborer who has no trade. He is at the mercy of every body, and no one fails to take advantage of his weakness. I myself have seen strong, able-bodied Swedes go into the lumber-yards of Chicago and get but ninty cents a day, while men who get but ninty cents a day, while men who could not do half as much work as they got $1.50, simply because the Swede could not speak English. The Swede had learned to do the work by serving a short apprentice-ship, but advantage was taken of his igno-

The common laborer, who has only his muscle to sell, has much to contend with in Chicago. His more skillful brothers have sought to protect themselves from the avariee of capital by forming unions, and have succeeded in dictating to what extent they may be imposed upon. Under these circumstances the burden of the common laborer has been made harder to bear and the avarice of capital falls upon his devoted head alone. Rarely is the common laborer paid a sum sufficient to maintain his family, and educate his children. If he works upon head alone. Rarely is the common laborer paid a sum sufficient to maintain his family and educate his children. If he works upon the railroad in any capacity his income is never more than $1.40 a day; and when his board at the rate of $4 a week is paid not much remains for his family. In the railroad freight houses he receives from $1.25 to $1.50 a day, and in the barns of the street railroad companies he gets $1.50 a day on the North side and $1.68% on the West and South sides. In the lumber-yards the pay ranges from 90 cents to $1.50 a day, old men receiving even less than 90 cents. In the labor of unloading boats the pay is never more than 20 cents an hour, and the work is exceedingly irregular. Men who work about buildings in the course of erection, helping brick-layers and stone-masons, get an average of $1.25 a day. In the matter of hours the common laborer is again subjected to hardships, having to remain long after he sees skilled workmen lay down their tools and go home. With these indisputable facts before him, every boy should take a warning and become master of some mechanical art before his maturity.

Paper Imitation of Calfakin.

During the last twelve months (says the Revus des Cuirs) a paper leather to imitate calfakin has made its appearance, and seems likely to play an important part in the manufacture of portfolios and albums. It can be used for a variety of purposeafor toilet articles, bookbinding, etc. The calfakin is so well imitated that the first look might deceive even an expert. This imitation leather can be used with great advantage for many articles, at remunerative prices. Real calf is expensive, but of great durability. This imitation calf is cheap, although it can hardly be expected to wear well.

"Ah, old fellow," said an Austin gentieman, meeting another on the Avenue, "so you are married at last. Allow me to congratulate you, for I hear you have an excellent and accomplished wife"
"I have indeed," was the reply; "She is accomplished. Why, sir, she is perfectly at home in literature; at home in music; at home in art; at home in science—in short, at home everywhere except."
